E. H. POLLARD, ESQ.

The Scheme of a Local Bank for this Colony with Branches at the most important places in China, has been in contemplation for a very long period.

The local and foreign trade in Hongkong and at the open ports in China and Japan has increased so rapidly within the last few years that additional Banking facilities are felt to be required.

The Banks now in China being only branches of Corporations whose head quarters are in England or India, and which were formed chiefly with the view of carrying on exchange operations between those countries and China, are scarcely in a position to deal satisfactorily with the local trade which has become so much more extensive and varied than in former years.

This deficiency the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Company will supply, and will in fact assume the same position with relation to the Colony as the Presidency Banks in India, or the Banks of Australia in their respective localities.

The Establishment of a Mint in Hongkong, providing an adequate supply of proper currency, will render a local Banking medium essential to carry on its operations, and the almost certain disappearance of the existing Compradoric system (so far as money is concerned) will also ensure Banks becoming in course of time the exclusive medium for the transaction of the monetary operations connected with trade.

For the anticipated success of this enterprize there are therefore ample grounds; and the great prosperity which has attended the working of the local associations in China clearly shews that the largest profits are obtained by those Public Companies which possess an interested local body of Proprietors or Shareholders whose support naturally forms a chief element of remunerative success.

The Bank will commence operations simultaneously in Hongkong and Shanghai and as the importance of its business at the latter place must be very great, it is intended to establish a local Board of Directors there for more effectually managing the work. As circumstances render it advisable also to officers of colonial militia, yeomanry, and volunteer corps, which have been, or may hereafter be, raised by the legislature of the colonies, with the sanction of her Majesty the Queen, during the period of their embodiment and service with her Majesty's regular forces.—By command of his Royal Highness the field-marshal Commanding in-chief. A. H. HORSFORD, Deputy-Adjutant-General."

visible the Bank will establish Branches at other places.

In the distribution of Shares Hongkong and Shanghai will equally participate. Shares will also be reserved for the other ports in China and Japan and for persons residing elsewhere, who are directly interested in the China Trade.

Applications for Shares must be addressed until further notice, to the Provisional Committee, care of

HONGKONG VOLUNTEERS.

THE following General order relative to the rank of Officers is published for the information of the Corps:—

"Horse Guards, 16th August, 1864.—His Royal Highness the field-marshal Commanding-in-chief has received her Majesty's commands to promulgate to the army the following regulation which has been decided on, in concurrence, with the Secretary of State for War, viz.—"The order, as contained in her Majesty's book of regulations, for the relative rank of the officers of the army and Royal Marines, with those of the militia, yeomanry, and volunteers, shall be held applicable also to officers of colonial militia, yeomanry, and volunteer corps, which have been, or may hereafter be, raised by the legislature of the colonies, with the sanction of her Majesty the Queen, during the period of their embodiment and service with her Majesty's regular forces.—By command of his Royal Highness the field-marshal Commanding-in-chief. A. H. HORSFORD, Deputy-Adjutant-General."

2 The Commandant, with the unanimous approval of the Committee named in Rules Nos. 13 and 16, deems it advisable to place on record, that it is not desirable for any Member of the Corps to hold communication with the Public Press on Regimental matters without the sanction of the Commanding Officer; and the Proprietors of the local newspapers would further the interests of the "Hongkong Volunteers" more by only allowing matters in their columns to such matters in connection with the Corps as come publicly under their notice as journalists i.e. Parades, Prize Meetings, Organization, &c.

3 The Prize Meeting for 1864 having been fixed to take place on the 2nd and 3rd December Honorary and Effective Members are requested to arrange the Rifle practice accordingly. The Prize Committee is requested to meet the Commandant on Tuesday, the 1st November, at Government Buildings at 3 P.M.

4 The proposed visit of the Corps to Macao, as agreed on by their Excellencies the Governors of Hongkong and Macao, has been settled for early on Saturday the 19th November, returning early on the 21st. Winter Clothing and Side Arms.

5 In consequence of the Regatta, the Parade ordered for Tuesday the 1st November, is postponed to the 9th November, on which date Winter Clothing will be taken into store. All Members whether "passed" or not, are requested to attend this parade and each Gun, will be supplied with 10 Rounds of blank Cartridge.

THE COMMERCIAL BANK OF INDIA.

THIS Company has been formed for the purpose of purchasing a site in the Colony of Hongkong for Docks and constructing Docks and erecting suitable Premises thereon for carrying on the Business of Building or Docking and Repairing Steamers and Sailing Vessels, and for the purchase of the Docks now owned and carried on at Whampoa by Messrs. T. HUNT & Co. with the Appurtenances Plant and Good-will of the Docking Business of that Firm.

It is proposed to register, the Company as one of Limited Liability either under the Imperial Act or under any Ordinance which the local Legislature may pass enabling local Companies to do so, the property of the Company in the meantime being vested in the Trustees, and the Deed of Settlement of the Company, now in course of preparation, is being framed in accordance with this intention.

The very considerable increase in the number of Vessels employed in what may be termed local trade, or in voyages that either originate or terminate, at Hongkong, in addition to the great quantity of tonnage visiting the Port, from all quarters of the World, afford ample scope for the remunerative operations of Dock Companies, in addition to those which are already in existence.

Application has been made to Her Majesty's Government with reference to obtaining a site for the proposed Docks in the Colony, and the project has been favourably entertained, steps being in progress to facilitate this object, the necessary preliminary investigations as to the suitable character of the proposed site having been conducted and satisfactorily reported upon, by Mr. S. B. BAWLING.

Liberal support has been promised to the undertaking which it is contemplated must necessarily prove a very remunerative one.

Further applications for Shares can till further notice be addressed to the Undersigned from whom forms of application and all particulars can be obtained.

We have advices per Magenta from Nagasaki to the 25th October. Messrs. Jardine's steamer Carthage had been sold to Prince Tozen for the sum of $120,000 Mexican. The money had been paid and the vessel duly delivered. She is a finely constructed vessel, but she is about twelve years old and has her original boilers.

The Bahama, Rona, City of Nantes, Tsping Nye, and Monitor, were all at Nagasaki on the 25th October. Messrs. Jardine's steamer Carthage had been sold to Prince Tozen for the sum of $120,000 Mexican. The money had been paid and the vessel duly delivered. She is a finely constructed vessel, but she is about twelve years old and has her original boilers.

The Bahama, Rona, City of Nantes, Tsping Nye, and Monitor, were all at Nagasaki newly painted up and made clean in the hope of attracting purchasers. Palm oil is clearly the article to apply in such cases. It should however be used judiciously and not dabbed on as though it were plaister of Paris, as was the case with the sale of the Ley-canoon, where the Minister of one of the Treaty Powers, having acted as broker in the affair, actually pocketed $60,000 by naming the wrong amount of purchase money to both vendor and vendee.

We see from the Shanghai Recorder that a rumor is current to the effect that Sir Rutherford Alcock has been recalled. We think the truth must be that His Excellency has been nominated to succeed Sir F. Bruce at Pekin. The contrast between the diplomacy of the two men is so great,—the failure of the one so palpable—the success of the other so undoubted—that we think there can hardly be two opinions upon their respective merits as Oriental diplomats.

If Sir Rutherford should be appointed to Peking, our readers may rely that he will inculcate the fact into his Imperial cabinet, that they have responsibilities which it requires something besides their own option to release them from. We cannot be for ever driving the Meds from the gate, thereby encouraging a government in its callous negligence of its duties; allowing the Empire meanwhile to crumble into anarchy.

THE intelligence per Tigre must appear rather unintelligible to many of our readers. The following remarks from the London "Spectator" may serve to throw some light on the American news. It must be remembered however that the Spectator is strongly Federal.

The fact of the Liverpool Cotton market having declined two pence, can only be explained by well grounded expectations of peace.

The great news of the week,—news, however, on which the Times correspondent at New York has cast a shadow of apparently rather arbitrary doubt —is the evacuation of Atlanta by the Confederates, and its occupation by a portion of General Sherman's army under General Slocum. The despatches which brought this news were published by the Government as official on the 3rd of September,—having been received on the 2nd,—and because no confirmation of them was received by the evening of the same day, when the Peruvian left, the Times' New York correspondent threw doubt upon their authenticity. Hitherto all the official despatches of the Government have been thoroughly confirmed by subsequent reports, and there seems to be no reasonable doubt of this, which tallies with our previous news; for it was added that a great battle had been fought by the body of General Sherman's army with the retreating army of General Hood at East Point, on the Macon road, in which the Confederate General Hardee was killed and both sides suffered heavily. Now, we know that General Sherman had intervened between Atlanta and Macon, and that Hood would be forced to cut his way through the opposing army at all hazards in order keep up his only remaining line of supplies. Unofficial reports asserted that General Hood's retreating army was cut in two with fearful loss; but of this the Government dispatches gave no confirmation.

Fort Morgan, the last Confederate defence of Mobile Bay, surrendered unconditionally to Admiral Farragut on the 23rd August, with 1,500 prisoners, 100 cannon, and provisions for six months. The long defence which General Page had boasted that he would make when he so heavily censured Colonel Anderson for the surrender of Fort Gaines came to nothing. "Fort Morgan," says Admiral Farragut, "never fired a gun after the commencement of the bombardment, and the advanced picket of our army was instantly upon its glacis."

The Union repeated Confederate attack on the Weldon Railroad on the 25th of August, ended unsuccessfully, for though it drove the Federals from their weaker position at Reams station, and so cleared about four miles of railroad out of the eight which they had occupied, it left the principal works of the Federals on the railroad nearer Petersburg entirely untouched,—and the solid occupation of four miles out of the nine line of supply with the South as effectually as if they were eight. The battle was an exceedingly bloody one, resulting, it is said, in the loss of some 3,000 men to the Federals and of at least 5,000 to their assailants. It is probably due to this alarming occupation of the principal line of communication between Richmond and the South that the Confederates, have again retreated from the Potomac down the Shenandoa Valley, followed by Sheridan's army. As the last report Confederate General Early's rear guard was between Winchester and Martinsburg.

Muller and his train—Inspector Tanner, the cabman, and Mr. Death—are at last in this country, having arrived by the Etna on Thursday at Queenstown, whence Muller was to be conveyed to London. The preliminary examination in New York led to no new light, his counsel having nothing to do in fact except to taunt the British Lion, like the young Columbian in "Martin Chuzzlewit"—"Freedom's hand once twisted in his mane he lies a corse before me, and the eagles of the great republic laugh ha! ha!" a style of argument which appears as we have explained elsewhere, to be only too popular in New York, but scarcely germane to the subject. Muller, however, made a private statement to the correspondent of the Star to the effect that he bought the hat a year ago, and purchased the watch and chain on London Bridge just before his embarkation—a rash statement, we fear, not likely to condemn to a successful defence. The newspaper correspondents from Cork telegraph

PENINSULAR & ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

NOTICE OF REDUCTION OF PASSAGE MONEY.

IN the year 1847 the Directors made a considerable reduction in the Company's rates of Passage Money, which continued in force till 1861. In that year, owing to the extraordinary rise in the Cost and Freight of Coals, and the enhanced prices of all descriptions of Naval Stores, the Directors were reluctantly compelled to return to the rates of Passage Money previously in force. They are now happy to state that a decrease in the price of Coal and other expenses of Steam Navigation enables them to reduce the Company's Passage rates to the undermentioned scale, which will take effect from and after the 1st June next, viz:—

EXTRACTS.

Famous Regiments of the British Army.

Mr. Duncan Adams has done for the army, and done well, what has long since and in many different forms been done for the navy of England. It is true that in the latter case the task is far more limited in extent and less difficult of execution, besides appealing directly to the prevailing national sentiment of pride in the "wooden walls"—now so completely things of the past. A ship in and out of commission scarcely evolves a generation, and her history is usually confined to that of a few great naval engagements about the same time, or one or two celebrated single combats. The old tradition of ships directly sentenced to dissolution, was pronounced against any famous seventy four or frigate has been abandoned, and it is not possible now for the associations of our old fighting craft, Arethusa or Shannon's to be revived in the shape of the monstrous masses of iron which now pass current for ships. The old fighting seventy-fours may still lengthened, and iron-plated, or be subjected to any of the operations in which the Admiralty occasionally delights to spend enormous sums, with disproportionate results, but all the associations of the English navy are gone except those connected with the abstract qualities of the English sailor. But it is very different with regard to the army. There are regiments now in the service which under almost identically the same organization as at the present time have served for a couple of centuries in all parts of the globe. To do justice to the history of such a regiment requires no little research and judicious compression, while the difficulty of selection from the numerous corps of regularly balanced claims to distinction must have been considerable. Mr. Duncan Adams has only included nine in his present work, and even with the most careful condensation the record of their services extends over a closely printed volume of more than three hundred pages. There is scarcely a battalion in the British army whose history would not supply ample material for a brilliant romance of fact, but to the nine chosen by Mr. Adams the distinction of being primi inter pares must at least be conceded. It is just over the two centuries since the nucleus was formed of "that great and renowned army which has in the present century marched triumphant into Madrid and Paris, Canton and Candahar." The first corps raised in England in succession with our present system, and in fact the first germ of an English standing army, was the Coldstream Guards, raised by General Monk at Coldstream on the Borders. In the course of a few years, although Charles II. was compulsorily cautious in his steps towards the establishment of a standing army, several others were added, and by 1685 the British infantry consisted of four regiments besides the Guards,—the 1st, Royals; the 2nd, Queen's; the 3rd, or Buffs and the 4th, or King's Own. Before the close of the century a grenadier company furnished with hand grenades had been added to each regiment, bayonets had been introduced, several regiments of fusiliers originally intended to protect artillery had been raised, and the principle of a standing army of considerable numbers fairly established. Light horse were introduced in 1745, and hussars in the reign of George III. It is within the last few years, however, that the greatest changes have taken place in the British army, both in moral and material. But the improvements of modern science in gunnery and the introduction of totally new systems of musketry need not break off the power of associations, or destroy the memory of triumphs achieved under far different conditions, and advancement and elevation of the soldier himself only renders him more capable of becoming acquainted with and appreciating the traditions of his corps.

Of course the post of honour is accorded by Mr. Adams to the eventful history of the 1st Royals; it has a definite history extending to an earlier date than that of any other regiment, and in addition can fairly claim to inherit the traditions of more than one body of men which had centuries before rendered Scotch gallantry proverbial throughout Continental Europe. Close upon a thousand years ago the Carlovingian monarchs had a Scotch body-guard, in the Crusades Louis IX. was attended by 100 Scotch gentlemen, and in the fifteenth century upwards of 7,000 Scots served under the Dauphin of France against the English, and to them was principally entrusted the defence of the country against the English. They were nearly annihilated by the Duke of Bedford in 1423, but they had gained a reputation for valour which rendered a Scotch contingent an object of most eager contention by every belligerent in Europe. They never again fought in solid force in a French field, though the Scotch body guard was always kept up; but in 1690 a body of Scots served against the League under Henry of Navarre. In the early part of the next century the actual nucleus of the 1st Royals assumed definite form. A large body of Scotch troops were attracted by the fame of Gustavus Adolphus, and fought against Russia and Poland during ten or more years. They were joined in 1625 by a troop of Scots who had been fighting in Germany under their Colonel, Sir John Hepburn, and for another ten years these gallant free companions marched well nigh throughout Europe, from the Elbe to the Danube, always getting in the way of the hardest blows. In 1635 the remnant joined the forces of the Duke of Saxe Weimar, and served the campaign of that year in conjunction with their compatriots in the French service. In 1636 Sir John Hepburn was killed, and was succeeded by Colonel James Hepburn, whose place on his meeting with the same fate was filled by Lord James Douglas. For the next twenty years Le Regiment Douglas, then 8,000 strong, remained faithful to French allegiance though the majority of French mercenaries had gone over to Spain, and in 1691 at the request of Charles II., they came to England, and obtained rank as the 1st Royal Scotch Regiment in the English Army. After serving with the French in Holland, it was finally incorporated in the English service in time to take a prominent part in the battle of Sedgemoor. In 1689 the Royals were despatched to Holland, in 1692 they fought splendidly at Steenkirk under a Douglas, who lost his life in recovering a captured regimental colour. They fought again at Landen, and took the leading part in the greatest triumph that had attended English arms for more than two centuries—the storming of Namur. Even the cold-blooded William of Orange was moved to enthusiasm. Laying his hand on the shoulder of the Elector of Bavaria, he exclaimed, "Look! look at my brave English!" At Schellenberg, Blenheim, Ramillies, and Malplaquet, the Royals were always in the thick of the fray. Chilleau, Cornica, Toulon, the conquest of Canada, the capture of the Spanish West Indies, were all shared in by one or more battalions of the Royals. In the present century a glorious campaign in Egypt—whence the sphinx that figures in the colours of the Royals—the capture of the Danish West Indies, Corunna, the entire Peninsular war, the American war, Quatre Bras, Waterloo, the Maratta war, the Canadian rebellion, and the Crimea, complete the long battle-roll of 1st Royals.

The history of the 3rd Buffs is scarcely less remarkable. The regiment traces its origin to the English troops employed under the Earl of Leicester, Sir Philip Sidney, and others in the Low Countries during the reigns of Elizabeth, and Mr. Adams has made constant illustrations of this subject in the first contains illustrations of this subject in the eloquent pages of Mr. Lothrop Motley's "United Netherlands." The field of Zutphen was fought by the men to whom the 3rd Buffs are the unquestionable heirs. In 1665 the "Holland Regiment" was recalled to England, and formally amalgamated with the British infantry forces. For some time they were known as Prince George of Denmark's Regiment, but ultimately their full watermark's Regiment, but ultimately their full watermark's Regiment, but ultimately their full waterm
